Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Forecast until 8 p. m. Friday: For Kansas—Fair; northerly winds; becoming variable; warmer in northern portion Friday morning.

PRENDERGAST is one of the few things that are not tied up.

The railroad telegraphers consider that they hold the key to the situation.

The almost universal stopping of wheels has no appreciable inhibitive effect on circular letters.

The Midwinter fair is closed, which shows there is no resemblance between it and Governor Witte's mouth.

The industries of the country that the Democratic administration failed to stop, are now being suspended by Mr. Debs.

For all the trouble and expense that the Coxeyites and strikers are giving him Uncle Sam keeps in a remarkable good humor.

JOHN J. INGALLS is in Chicago. If he is detained there against his will, an interview from him would be exceedingly spicy reading.

As THOUGH there were not quite enough disturbance in the country at present, Butte, Montana, gets up a little religious riot to make things lively.

The only objection to the burying of the Goddess of Liberty by Carl Browne and his companions is that in Washington they wouldn't dare to keep her grave green.

NEWS OF KANSAS.

Chief Telegrapher Powell Does Not Favor a Strike.

He Says the Boycott is Unjust in the Employees.

OTHER STATE NEWS.

Railroad Employees at Atchison Have a Fist Fight.

EMPORIA, July 6.—Grand Chief Powell of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, and Assistant Chief Dolphin met with the Emporia operators and discussed the situation. The assistant chief is in favor of the strike but Powell is opposed to it and declined to order out his men. He advised those who had left their keys to return to work but only one of them did so. The remainder denounced Powell and have called a meeting of the Emporia lodge at which they say the charter of the O. R. T. will be sent in.

Powell says the Strike is Unjust. "I think the present strike is unjust on the part of the railroad men and a good deal the result of spite work," said Grand Chief Telegrapher Powell in an interview at Wichita.

"You think their demands are unjust?" "Well, I think their cause for striking is unjust. The fight with the Pullman company is not the fight of the American Railway union. It seems that when Debs had made the Great Northern come to time, he took up the Pullman fight with the purpose of showing the strength of his organization, and he interfered unjustly."

"How do you make it a result of spite work?"

"Just this way. On a great number of roads wages have been reduced and as a natural result the men feel a little sore and spiteful. This is evident from the fact that on roads like the Missouri Pacific where the employees have been treated fairly there is no strike."

"Will your organization be ordered out?"

"Not that I know of now. I have received word from all over the country and no one has quit so far. There is no telling what might happen, however. Today all may look right and tomorrow all may be different."

"How is that?"

"Just this way. Our men will not work beside a scab (a non-union man) and in case one of the Order of Railway Telegraphers steps out and a 'scab' is put in the others will quit."

"What would cause one of your men to step out?"

"There are three ways. They might join the association of railroad unions or in case a scab conductor sends dispatches they might refuse to take them, or in case a scab brakeman is put on and the conductors refuse to work, they too, might refuse."

"Will the Western Union men go out if you do?"

"Very likely, as they have had reductions made in their salaries and are a little sore. If the striking continues it is likely to tie up the whole country."

STRIKERS EXCHANGE BLOWS.

Switching Crews of the Santa Fe and Missouri Pacific Fight.

ATCHISON, July 6.—The first trouble as a result of men taking the places of Santa Fe strikers in this city occurred between the Santa Fe and Missouri Pacificmen. The switching crew of the Missouri Pacific met the switching crew of the Santa Fe near the Sixth street viaduct. Some words passed between the men which led to a fight. The participants were Will Kurth, of the Missouri Pacific, and his brother Charlie, and W. E. Oviatt and Ed Ferguson, of the Santa Fe. Ferguson was knocked nearly under the Santa Fe locomotive while it was in motion. Blows were exchanged very fast for a short time. The fight ended by the engines of both crews moving off. No one suffered any more injury than a few bruises.

Only seven homestead entries were made during the quarter and 640 acres were sold upon which entries had never been made. Other lands were sold upon which entries had been made, but which were afterward abandoned amounting to 1,227 acres.
